

Biorefinery – Biobased Value Chains and Sustainable Development

Fourth International Environmental Best Practices Conference (EBP-IV) 08-12 September 2013, Olsztyn, Poland

The Fourth International Environmental Best Practices (EBP-IV) Conference will be held at the University of Warmia and Mazury (UWM) in Olsztyn, Poland. The conference is organized in collaboration with the University of Applied Sciences, Offenburg, Germany.

The objective of the conference is to bring together researchers from academic, governmental and industrial institutions to discuss new developments and results in the field of environmental science. It is anticipated that attendees will present their knowledge and understanding of a broad spectrum of environmental issues and solutions to the challenges facing the world today.

This conference is devoted to all branches of environmental studies and engineering undertakings dealing with research and development of biorefinery concept. It is best suited for individuals working in the fields of Biotechnology, Chemistry, Environmental Engineering, as well as Government Regulation and Project Management.

Conference topics:

- Biorefinery – research progress and opportunities
- Feedstock
- Genetics and biotechnology
- Biomass pretreatment
- Bioprocesses and bioproducts
- Valorization of waste products by microorganisms and enzymes
- Biorefinery thermal processes
- Biorefinery and environmental impact.

A workshop for national and international fund raising will be held at the conference.

Authors of oral and poster presentations are encouraged to submit their manuscripts for publication in the periodical „Environmental Biotechnology” which has both printed and electronic version (<http://www.environmentalbiotechnology.pl>).
